Budgeting Activities for Teens and Adults With Special Needs

"This Looks Great on You!
You Should Totally Buy it!"
BUT SHOULD YOU?

It's the job of a salesperson to persuade you into thinking you need something you actually don't. Learning these nuances is particularly important for teens/adults with disabilities to avoid being compulsive shoppers. Check out this five-point 'don't buy it' checklist:

YOU SHOULDN'T BUY IT IF:

- 1. It's not in the plan: Before you shop, it's best to leave the house with a spending plan that reflects what you can afford. If it's not in the plan, don't buy it!
- 2. You don't actually "need" it: It's always easy to come up with reasons why you might want a product, but a smart shopper is able to differentiate between "want" and "need."
- 3. The salesperson told you to buy it: It's their job to make you want to buy. They live for the sale, but can you live with the sale?
- 4. It has to be NOW: There is nothing wrong with saying no or postponing a decision to buy something. Giving yourself some time will allow you to think about it more rationally.
- 5. You just don't want to miss out: It's a hard truth, but sometimes you can't have everything you want. Understanding this is key for smart purchases
